The Territorial Enterprise of Virginia City, Nevada, tells the following story: A friend who has a ranch on the Truckee river, a short distance below Reno, gives us the following little anecdote as illustrative of the claunish spirit and neighborly love of the people of Texas:-He and a Texas, who was contemplating the purchase of a ranch semawhere in Truckee Meadows, were out on horseback looking at the farms and cattle ranges along the river. As they leisurely followed the meanderings of the stream, they presently saw two horsemen on the opposite bank. One of these our friend knew to be a rear neighbor, and the other he recognized as a man lately arrived from Texas, who was arranging with the firmers of Truckee Meadows, for

As the two parties approached each other the Texan with our friend recognized in the one on the opposite bank of the river an old friend and a man who was one of his nearest greetings, many friendly questions were put and answered. The men were evidently de-lighted to meet each other, and their only re-gret appeared to be that they encountered one another in a place where it was impossible for them to clasp and shake hands, the river not

THE POPE'S GARDEN,-Let me relate, says a Roman correspondent, a visit to the Popa's private garden, which is supposed to be inaccassible to the outside world. Its particular interest is in the fact that for eight years the popes have not stepped out of the Vation Palaci except to go into this garden, and naturally, it is However, we bribed the officials and were let into the garden surreptitiously, with permission to remain an hour, and we improved the time to the utmost. Until recently it has been only a place to stroll about in on foot. But now the Pope is having a carriage road made through it, and has just had no elegant landau constructed in Rome, with the Papal cecutcheon upon it, especially to drive about the gar len in. The principal avenues are bordered by flat hedges, and in passing along you catch glimpses, through green arches, of the sweetest little sylvan retreats that you can imagine; birds sing ing, fountains bubbling, light and shade playing through the flickering leaves, the air full of the teents of orange blossoms and roses, shady paths wieding in and out, up and dourn, in the most distracting way, the ground covered with a thick matting of deep leaves, the accumulation of years. Here an ancient sarcophagus, with sceptured figures in relief; there a marble statue, gray

AT WATERLOO.—Every campaign presents examples of what is familiarly called good luck, and of the reverse. Of the latter, Sergeant Morris of the Saventy third (who has written a very modest account of his services) relates a remarkable instance. During the night after Quatre Bras an officer of his regiment arrived being carried at a "trail" -that is-grasped in newly arrived officer was to the rear before the lice changed front, and, instead of going to what then became the rear, he marched on fivo by accident, the ball entered the officer's back. passed through his heart, and he fell dead! His purse, sword and enaulers were taken care of, a grave was speedily dig, and he who had DOVE BRAND SMOKED BEEF, very choice, for slicing and chipping, for sale by je23
